PLAN RESCUE FOR AMUNDSEN

INDICT SCOPES
FOR TEACHING
EVOLUTION LAW

Picturesque Scenes
for Unusual Case.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.
(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)
Dayton, Tenn., May 25.—[Special.]

In this green theater of the Cumberland ridge, where once a mighty battle was fought above the clouds over the principle of human slavery, new men were drawn day by day for a bitter struggle between the old time religion of the hills and the new scientific liberalism of the col-

Hill. Most solemnly, earnestly, and formally, thirteen of Tennessee's Ardent citizens, in grand jury assembled, voted unanimously and promptly this morning to present a bill against young John Thomas Scopes, Dayton high school teacher, who dared to implant in the minds of his pupils the idea that man's body is an animal's body related to the ape, and it has been evolved through millions of years, and that the Bible story of creation is not a literal truth.

Another Cloud-Vailed Fight.
It is to be a battle among the clouds that obscure the origin and destiny of the human race.

The thunder of the new law is coming from the neighborhood of Lookout mountain instead of Sinai.

The presentment of the grand jury, made up chiefly of grain and aged farmers, is as follows:

"That John Thomas Scopes, heretofore a teacher in the public schools of Rhea county, Tennessee, aforesaid, against the peace and dignity of the state,"

Judge Felicitates Juries.

This was signed by A. P. Stuart, attorney general, who presented the evidence to the grand jury and was returned in the court of Judge John T. Huston, who congratulated them upon their action.

A special term of court was then set for the trial, which is to begin July 16 in Dayton.

Scopes, a modest, sensitive young man, passionately sincere in his conviction that the anti-evolution law is a form of mental slavery, was not in court, but was found later under the roof of the town square, where the scales were hitched, center of a throng. He was nervous and jangled.

He is ready to go through with it, and started to explain again why that Darwinian evolution is incompatible with the idea of an all-powerful, loving Father of the universe.

He is to be lynched, says Dixie. His counsel, John Randolph Neal, who was dismissed from the University of Tennessee two years ago for a similar liberal teaching, has him and led him away.

Scopes hitched up and started home.

Whippersnapper—ought to be on the spot! one juror was moved to remark.

The idea of the prosecution is that he was undermining the faith in the Bible.

Jennings Bryan, who is in these parts, and Clarence Darrow, who is known only to the lawyers who meet in the drug stores to face each other across the tables on this and other occasions, invaded.

A Real Battle in Prospect.

SEIZE CAR LOAD OF ALE SHIPPED HERE AS LUMBER

A carload of Canadian ale, containing 500 barrels and worth some $15,000, was seized by Charles W. Vursell, chief field officer of the prohibition forces, and Joe Pendleton, agent chief, last night at 51st Street and South Park avenue. Mr. Vursell declared he believes the catch has revealed the source and the method of bringing in huge quantities of ale, which have reached Chicago recently. It is the first carload of ale seized here, he added.

The ale was shipped from Shellback, near Quebec. It was billed as red fir lumber, and around the outside of the car was a layer of the lumber. The ale was bottled and in barrels, labeled "Canadian apples."

THE TORCH BEARER

AUNT MARIA, THE LAST STUDEBAKER PIONEER, IS DEAD

South Bend, Ind., May 25.—"Aunt Maria" is dead, and with her passes the original house of Studebaker. She was the sister of the four brothers who established the Studebaker corporation. They were early pioneers of this section, migrating from Ohio.

When Aunt Maria became ill on April 20 her prayer was that she would live to celebrate her eighty-fifth birthday anniversary tomorrow. Death cheated her by hours, for she passed away at 3:30 June 1.

Henry and Clement, two of her brothers, left the family home at Ashland and came to South Bend in 1842.

Their capital was $35, and with it they began to build wagons. Later they persuaded the parents to bring the family here. Other brothers entered the wagon building business, and out of the enterprise developed the Studebaker corporation, which a few years ago was granted a charter by Congress.

The present maximum rate is 75 cents an hour, which, surface lines officials say, is the highest paid in America. Yesterday's proposal comes as a counter proposition to one on the part of the men several weeks ago to the effect that a 5 cent boost be granted and also demanding certain amendments to rules in favor of the men.

Union Men Don't Comment.

William Quinlan, head of the union, and his committee were informed of the company's proposition upon their arrival at the office of G. A. Richardson, operating vice president of the company.

Quinlan and the others declined to comment, saying the matter would be placed before a meeting of the employees to be held next Monday night.

Besides the wage cut, the company's proposition provides that week-day runs shall be as near 8 hours as possible, with time and a half after 8 hours; that night runs shall be as near 8 hours as possible; that allowances be allowed on straight time only, the percentage of straight runs to be not less than 55, and that the men be permitted 20 minutes for meals.

At present overtime is paid after 8 hours' work, 25 minutes are allowed for meals, and a minimum of 60 percent of the runs are straight.

JAP STATESMAN ADMITS FEAR OF WAR WITH U. S.

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)

BERLIN, May 25.—Viscount Goto, Japanese statesman, who has just professed the Russo-Japanese agreement, was interviewed in the Vossische Zeitung today and spoke of the possibility of war between America and Japan.

"The right to colonize in California is a question of vital importance to Japan. We deny that a country like America, which was built up through immigration, has the right to issue an immigration law," he said.

"Even immigration laws can be repealed. If in the course of events Japan does not see any change in the American attitude, the possibility mentioned in the question will have to be drawn into the circle of considerations."

Viscount Goto closed the interview by stressing the friendliness of the Japanese-American relations.

BARR DEFENDS "TERMINABLE" PLAN IN BILL

Outlook Is for Inquiry Into Permit Method.

Springfield, Ill., May 26.—[Special.] Senator among senators and representatives arriving last night seemed to favor further investigation of "terminable permits" for street railways and other public utilities before any legislation is enacted in Illinois. The delegation of the Chicago City Club seems to meet with considerable approval. It urged a joint commission of the house and senate to investigate for several months, with action at a special session in the fall or a general gathering of the present session.

If a practicable plan of inquiry can be devised which will not abandon the "terminable permit" idea altogether, action in that direction may be started before this legislative week is ended. No effort has been made to jam the bill through to date and senate leaders tonight asserted that none will be made.

Give City a Commission?

Senator Kessinger of Aurora is said to desire to present an amendment giving Chicago a utility commission of its own on transportation matters if Mayor Dever and the aldermen desire it. It is understood that Senator Kessinger's plan differs principally from the bill of Ald. Albert in form, but is similar in the Alber's bill in the body of Chicago. Whether the Kessinger amendment will be presented, a view of the sentiment for more than remains to be seen tomorrow.

Upholds "Terminable" Principle.

"There has been some criticism of the bill," Senator Barr said, "but no one to date has made a good argument against the principle of terminable permits. The objections have been to the method of handling terminable permits, who shall grant them and fix the terms."

The first thing in connection with the matter is that a terminable permit can be terminated. I believe that under the present utility law there is sufficient power in the Illinois commerce commission to compel good service at reasonable rates under penalty of putting the utility into other hands or causing the utility. If that power does not now exist to the extent desirable, any amendment to the existing bill not only will be welcome but it is needed.

The constitution asserts that no new car company shall be given rights in a street without the consent of the local authorities. No act of the legislature can take away that. In my own mind I believe the Illinois commerce commission has the power to cause new machinery and new methods to be installed where machinery and methods have become obsolescent.

As to Municipal Ownership.

I doubt whether the state legislature can do anything more towards municipal ownership than it has done except by an amendment to the state constitution, increasing the bonding power of cities. No one to date has suggested any other idea on that point.

To me the terminable permits mean taking the lid off the 20-year limitation and permitting a utility to operate during good behavior. It might be advisable to have one utility commission for the state and another for Chicago, as they have in New York.

That idea is worthy of consideration. I desire a full discussion of the subject matter and no attempt will be made to rush any bill on the subject through the legislature, so far as I am concerned. If the bill can be improved I would like to see it so amended before it starts through the general assembly.

Has Had Experience.

Some of the Chicago city officials have intimated that Senator Barr does not know much about municipal affairs. It so happens he was twice mayor of Joliet and had former Mayor Tom Johnson of Cleveland look over the water plant. The result was that it was under municipal ownership. He also devoted considerable time to studying municipal ownership and operation in the British Isles in 1907 and has much information regarding Glasgow, Belfast and other British municipalities. His family has been in America since 1880. The senator was on the state commission which investigated utility commissions before an act creating one was passed in Illinois. Germany Admits Battle of Jutland Was British Victory

BY JOHN CLAYTON.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]
BERLIN, May 25.—The official German picture of the battle of Jutland, which is contained in the fifth volume of the marine archives, published Tuesday, throws a different light on the German plan of operations and German failures and successes than did the publication of Admiral Scheer, the German commander in the battle, in 1926.

A detailed examination of the entire material reveals the following facts:

First—Admiral Scheer had no intention of engaging the British battle fleet when he made his sortie from the Jade river on May 31.

Second—Admiral Scheer did not know that he had the British grand fleet before him until 6 o'clock, when the cruiser Frankfurt reported itself under fire from British battleships.

Third—Admiral Jellicoe was robbed of certain victory, with the probable destruction of the German fleet, by the short time which intervened between the first meeting of the two main fleets and the fall of darkness.

Did Not Attack British.

Fourth—Admiral Scheer's tactics throughout the battle were remarkable and his fleet was even better. But claims that he attacked the British fleet and forced it to give action are not borne out.

The purpose of the operations was to work U-boat stations before all the British bases and then, by a sudden raid, to draw the British fleet and give the submarines an opportunity to attack. This maneuver was entirely successful, but the British line of battle was so well protected by destroyers that the submarine attacks were thwarted.

The war at sea was stagnant when, at the end of April, the German government informed the British that a board was to give up submarine attacks without search of merchant ships. The German war was clamoring for action by the high sea fleet. Admiral Scheer, confident that raids would meet with success, worked out a new plan of operations involving continual sorties by the main battle fleet. The May action, which resulted in the battle of Jutland, was so disastrous that it was never repeated.

Waited for Night to Escape.

When the German admiral found the British fleet before him Admiral Jellicoe already had maneuvered into a position which nearly cut off Admiral Scheer's line of retreat. He had no choice but to keep to the westward and avoid action as long as possible, hoping to break through the British during the night.

During the first phase of the action the combat between the battle cruisers—the German undoubtedly got the best of it. Beatty's stronger fleet, Admiral Beatty made the serious error of letting four powerful and fast battleships attached to his squadron get out of touch. Then, when the enemy appeared, without waiting to close up the fleet and give himself a decided advantage in ships and gunpowder, Admiral Beatty rushed six battleships on to the enemy's five.

Before his battleships could get into range Admiral Beatty had lost two of his battle cruisers.

The first phase of the action taught the British a bitter and costly lesson.

The German battle cruisers, although lighter, were faster, better armored and equipped technically to withstand the localized effects of the British fire. During this preliminary skirmish, too, the German fire was better. The Germans scored nineteen hits, and sank the Indefatigable, while the British were getting home three hits. Not until the Barham, Warspite, Malaya, and Valiant got into action was the German fire equalized. In the meantime the Queen Mary was sunk.

Whole Fleet Threatened.

But in the short combats between the main fleets the British had much the better of the action—so much so that Admiral Scheer three times was forced to break off, twice with maneuvers which threatened his whole fleet.

In the maneuvers which preceded the first dash of the main fleets, Admiral Jellicoe is completely exonerated.

His deployment of the port division of his battle fleet put the ships between the enemy and their base and placed

Admiral Scheer's column came under fire and forced to seek shelter in the night to give battle. When Admiral Scheer's column came under the fire of the British he found that he was being crossed by British ships and raked with a withering fire.

He ran. It was a part of his tactics through which he managed to avoid a definite engagement until nightfall.

If had there been a little more daylight Admiral Scheer would have lost, for the gradual encircling tactics of Admiral Beatty would have forced him to give a battle that would have meant destruction.

and Busch will probably not be considered until Thursday.

TOWN MEETING OF PROTEST

Chicago's protest against the Barr terminable permit bill, a plea for the return of unlimited home rule, will be voiced Friday morning in an old fashioned town meeting in the city council chamber.

Ald. Joseph B. McDonough [18th], chairman of the council local transportation committee, won approval of his plan to invite representatives of all civic and business associations to attend. The mass meeting is expected to result in an all-Chicago committee of about 500 to move on Springfield when the Barr bill is called up for passage in the house.

PUBLICATION OF INCOME TAXES IS HELD LEGAL

Supreme Court Decides in Favor of Newspapers.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 25.—[Special.]—Newspaper publication of amounts paid by taxpayers was held by the Supreme court of the United States to be legal.

Decisions of the lower courts in cases affecting the Kansas City Journal-Post and the Baltimore Post, against both of which indictments were obtained by the government, were affirmed.

The court, in an opinion written by Justice Sutherland, held that the information, as made available to public inspection, and the terms of the revenue act of 1924 "cannot be regarded otherwise than as public property, to be passed on to others as freely as the possessor of it may choose."

It is because he is so keenly analytical that he has turned to grain and cotton, where statistics are more reliable and conditions to be relied upon.

LIVERMORE OUT OF MARKET AND TURNS TO GRAIN

New York, May 25.—[Special.]—Jess L. Livermore has quit the stock market.

No more will Wall street be able to accuse him of staging spectacular bear drives or of managing stupendous bull pools, because the "most 'big' player," the greatest stock market speculator of modern times, has quit for good.

He has turned his stock market tickers ripped out of his office.

Coldly calculating his chances, Livermore has decided the stock market has grown too big for large individual operations.

No man, however wealthy, is able to swing the present day stock market with success like $600 separate stock issues listed, he has turned his attention to grain and cotton, in which he has been highly successful of late.

It is because he is so keenly analytical that he has turned to grain and cotton, where statistics are more reliable and conditions to be relied upon.

They Wanted Publicity.

It was added that "the contrary view requires a very dry and literal reading of the statute quite inconsistent with its legislative history and the known and declared objects of its framers."

The court disagreed with the view of the treasury and the department of justice that the provision of the law authorizing public inspection of names and amounts paid by taxpayers was not broad enough to permit publication of such information in the news media.

Secretary Mellon, who has opposed any publicity of tax information, indicated that the treasury cannot do otherwise now than to throw open to the public information relative to amounts paid by taxpayers in March last.

Collectors of internal revenue have heretofore been instructed not to make this information available to public inspection until direct orders are received from the internal revenue bureau.

It was indicated by Mr. Mellon that such orders will go out as soon as it is ascertained that the tax lists have been completed.

Given Little Latitude.

The commissioner is directed to make the lists of taxpayers and taxes paid available for public inspection," said the court in its decision.

"His discretion in that respect is limited only by his own sense of what is wise and expedient. He may at once make it clear, to what end is his discretion so vested in him to be exercised?" The obvious answer is: To the end that the names and addresses of the taxpayers and the amounts paid by them may be generally known.

"Information, which everybody is at liberty to acquire and the acquisition of which congress seemed especially desirous of facilitating, in the absence of some clear and positive provision to the contrary, cannot be regarded except as public property."

At the end of each month we hold a complete Clearance of all broken lines.

MOROCCANS AND YANKS TOGETHER IN BATTLE LINE

Bullard Tells of First Clash with Germans.

By GEN. ROBERT LEE BULLARD.
Who commanded the 2nd Division, then the Third Corps, and finally led the Second Army of the United States.

"As these are personal memories or experiences, the pronoun "I" can never be out of sight. I am not offering these memories as absolute fact, but as my impression and belief at the time.—R. L. Bullard."

SECTION 10.

The troops to our right were at first a French Moroccan division, commanded by the French colonial, Gen. Daugan.

Originally the division was composed entirely of Moroccans, but now, reduced by the battles and having only three years of battle still retaining its name Moroccan, they had gradually absorbed the likewise reduced remnants of other organizations, notably the Legion d'Extrange, until the division had lost its distinctive racial character as Moroccan. But while it had lost its racial character, it had, preserving its fierce, battle-like way of fighting, given a greater and grimmer significance to the name "Moroccan" to which it still held. It was one of the best fighting French divisions, if not the best. We were to see them later stemming the tide of German victory near Montdidier and again with slowly turning that tide at Soissons.

Used as Cannon Fodder.

Of this division, it seemed to me, the French always made cannon fodder. Wherever the fighting was worst, wherever the sacrifices heaviest, they were sent. This continued to the last, to the very day of the armistice, when I saw them on the road under the French fighting general, Mangin, going to start the last dangerous expedition ordered, but never required, in the world war—the advance of an American (mine) and a French army together to the eastward of Metz.

Under all its hardships and sacrifices the division never seemed to reward but, on the contrary, to take a heroic pride in being made cannon fodder in the sacrifice and slaughter they were put to suffer.

The French authorities declined to see or speak of it, but the Moroccan division were in the habit of giving no quarter in battle and did not trouble themselves with prisoners. At Soissons, where this division took part side by side with my American 3d Corps in a great successful battle, it was whispered that the Americans at the end of the battle loaned the Moroccans some German prisoners.

Five days here and little advance toward settlement of command."

Americans as "Babes in the Woods." This lasted for nearly three weeks. The French commander, who, with his division, had just taken the place of the Moroccan division on our right, was loath to part with the tactical direction of the Americans.

From staff officers at General Pershing's headquarters I later learned that other allied commanders, English, as well as French, showed an equal desire to part with the command of American forces wherever the latter fell under them, as they did before the formation of the first American army.

The American commander in chief was very careful to retain hold of these tanks.

It was his requirement, at least with commands which I exercised under the French, to keep a special wire from the commander of American troops to his own headquarters, and to require full reports therefrom daily of what was passing—all orders and all operations. It was apparent, from their disposition to hold on to us, that our allies regarded us as "babes in the woods" needing care. We were. But after two weeks I insisted that the First division were "babes" no longer, and that they knew the "woods."

Tanks Start a Scrap.

Feb. 10, 1918. Received tactical command of my division on the fifth and began harrying the enemy at once. Well, we stirred him up and he came back at us. I am glad I can say that he who "came back"—as we were—was the most active it seems probable that we made him lose more."

Here is how this scrap arose: Under the French occupation our sector had been very quiet. The French commander desired that the Americans occupy the sector equally quietly, in order that the men might grow used to the trenches, with too much disturbance. As long, therefore, as the French commander had our sector, nothing was done—but during the first two or three weeks—we were comparatively quiet.

Only now and then an American soldier who could not control his curiosity sent up his hat above the trenches, thus attracting the attention of the enemy in a way quite unusual during the occupation of the French, who had long ago forgotten such foolishness. But in general the French order had been obeyed. It is doubtful that the enemy knew that the trenches were occupied by other than Frenchmen.

Aggressiveness American Watchword.

When I came to command I remembered the tradition of the loss of heart aggressiveness and audacity of the commander, shown up in the trench at Vicksburg, and I recalled my own observation of a regiment which had likewise been shut up in a village in the Philippines for some two or three months, losing all aggressiveness, all spirit of offense. I remembered from my boyhood, too, a one armed brother-in-law's keeping a big two armed operating by starting the fight before the other fellow. I therefore let it be known on taking command of the 1st division, now in the trenches, that I did not intend to let the aggressiveness of our men be lost. This was all that was needed.

The artilleryman with his cannon and the infantryman with rifles and machine gun took every chance for a shot at the enemy. This was quite different from the conditions which existed under the French, as well as the Germans, both of whom had heretofore been sent into these sectors not to fight but to rest.

The Germans, therefore, knew at once that we had had some change, so he decided to make sure by a raid in which he should capture prisoners and learn really what had happened in the Moulli-la-Tour sector of the French lines. So he put on a raid, of course at the most vulnerable point of our line, up near Schlecheppe.

Gives Heimle a Warm Reception.

Our infantrymen there had profited by the teachings of our French trench instructors in the last few months. They read the signs before the hour of the raid and when the hour of the raid came into our trenches on a sudden dash, he was expected, and he found them almost vacant. Before he could get out our own men counter attacked him, caught him at a disadvantage and put him into a race run at once. He became tangled up in his own wires, lost two or three of his flame throwers, a machine gun or two, some fifteen men and a number of corpses hanging visibly in his own wire.

The Germans had quite well prepared this raid, using all their devices and means therefore, including good shock troops specially trained for such work, flame throwers, and much artillery. Our French friends were delighted. They had feared that we would be caught, it was a success, a thing which all have been afraid of.

French commander had our sector, it was no great affair—probably 200 men on each side engaged—but its inspiring effect was one of the first things that helped to make the 1st division what it afterward really became—magnificent fighting machine. I was at the time proud enough of the performance of my men, but was made more proud when two months later came the report of the loss on this same spot of some 400 men of the division, the 28th American, that had in relieving us in this sector made such adverse reports upon our efficiency.

Roasting Is Hot, Quick Work.

In its purpose and definition a trench differs in no wise from an old time American "Jeb" Stuart cavalry raid. Both are sudden, swift dashes at the enemy on his own ground to get information, surprise, demoralize, break up his organization, and in his surprise or confusion get away with the least loss.

But there the similarity ceases. In their execution and nature the two widely differ. The old cavalry raid was, or at least it was written of as, almost a picnic, a sort of jaunt prolonged for perhaps days and miles along the enemy's position, without danger—a lot of fun.

Not so the trench raid. It is a short, terrible, crashing fight, a thing of a few rods and a few minutes, filled with danger and death. It is preceded and followed by a tornado of artillery and shells, driven men into the bowels of the earth as the only safety, from which they may not emerge at all or may emerge to death or capture. Its suddenness, its hand-to-hand deadly encounters, its carnage at close quarters with daggers, pistols, and fearful explosives, its shattering, bloody, mercifulless action, make it terrible to both raiders and raided. Well that is it but a few minutes, it cannot last more.

The first [diary] of three raids that we made against the enemy might have been the making of war by the forces of the entire nation, so elaborate were the plans and preparations thereafter. I never saw before and never again expect to see as much counsel and advice taken upon the subject of a military operation, great or small."

As we were serving under French command, we sought the help of their experience and direction. French officers were sent to practice with our troops that were to execute the raid.

SCOPES INDICTED FOR TEACHING OF EVOLUTION'S LAW

Picturesque Background for Unusual Case.

called to this little city to present their views on the history of the so-called human race.

Fundamentalist and modernist are at odds here.

The character of the prosecution was purged of all friendliness and frame-up aspect today when George W. Rappleyea, manager of a mine here, who was the official prosecutor, withdrew from this role to make way for Prof. Walter White, county superintendent of schools. Rappleyea is a liberal thinker and started this case in the theory that the best way to get rid of an obnoxious law is to enforce it.

As the tiny flame grew to forest fire proportions he could not see himself in the attitude of conferring with Mr. Bryan as prosecutor, and with the consent of the attorney general, withdrew for Mr. White, who is a fundamentalist and sincere advocate of the anti-evolution law.

Against Modern Text Books.

"I think the text books that contain the theory of evolution should be re-written," Mr. White said today. "The state commission will consider this question in a few days."

It was hard to realize that this was the new age of science as the stage was arranged this morning for this pro-secular trial.

The plans are to take effect soon after May 31, according to the information received by that committee.

The purpose, it is said, is the tying up of work let to contractors who are operating under the award.

"No complaint as to wages or working conditions underlies this threat," says a statement issued yesterday.

It is intended purely as a demonstration against the Citizens' Committee to withdraw from further activity in this industry.

"But the committees will not stop so long as the contractors call for the support it has been giving them."

dous school students who were to be witnesses against the criminal Scopes.

Interviews among these elicited little information on the subject of evolution. Scopes' teachings did not seem through far enough to affect them. They did not know the meaning of "anthropoid ape," their supposed common ancestor.

"I believe in part of evolution, but I don't know about this monkey business," said one boy.

At last it was elicited from them that Scopes had told them he believed in theory of evolution, and, in order to arouse their tagging interest, had led them to the library and pointed out "Tarzan of the Apes." This was the crime established in the jury room.

Many Have Chased Tobacco There.

The courtroom is a bare white structure about large enough for the lawyers and newspaper reporters who will attend this trial. There are four stoves in the room, their bases encrusted with the tobacco juice of ages. The electric lights seem out of place.

Judge Rauston decided to open this special session of court with prayer and called in the Rev. H. G. Byrd of the Methodist church North.

"Let every one stand," said the judge.

The prayer was as follows:

"Help us to be humble in thy presence this morning. We acknowledge our ignorance this morning. Give us light. Help us to quit arguing about so many things that are not important, not to question so many things that are needful for us to know, but that we may know the Christ by simple faith. Bless this court. Lead us by thy spirit."

His Honor for the Defendant.

The defense table was vacant. At the state's table sat Attorney General Stuart and Special Assistants S. K. Hicks, Herbert Hicks, Gordon McKenna and Wallace Haggard, all men.

The attorney general also had a Bible at his table and two other books. These were the text books which Scopes was accused of having used. They were "A Civic Biology," by George William Hunter, Ph. D., of Knox college, Illinois, and "General Science," by Lewis Ellhoff, A. M. (Yale), teacher in the George Washington High school, Pittsburgh.

Some of the passages which had received the most black mark of the prosecuting attorney follow:

"The Theory of Evolution.

"This is the belief that simple forms of life on earth slowly and gradually gave rise to those more complex and that, ultimately, the most complex form (presumably man) came into existence."

"If we attempt to classify man we see at once that he must be placed

among the apes."

Among the early arrivals were a half dozen school students who were to be witnesses against the criminal Scopes.

Charles Darwin is referred to as the "grand old man of science," and his picture is shown.

Judge Rauston's attitude on the situation was expressed as follows:

"It has always been and is now, one of the greatest passions of my life, to ascertain the truth about all matter, especially matters relative to God, and man's proper relation to Him, but I'm not so much interested over the question as to whence man cometh as I am as to whither he goeth."

"I'm not so much concerned about the origin of my body as I am to the destiny of my soul."

The jurors, according to Tennessee custom, were ranged in chairs in front of the judge, facing the audience. There was not a woman in the courtroom. Evidently the day of women has not arrived here.

Instructions to the Jury.

The court's instructions to the jurors was read, as follows:

"Gentlemen of the grand jury: At the request of some of your good citizens I have reconvened you for the purpose of investigating an alleged violation of chapter 27 of the acts of 1925, which makes it unlawful to teach in the universities, normals and all public schools of the state which are supported in whole or in part by the public schools funds of the state, any theory that denies the story of divine creation of man as taught in the Bible and to teach instead that man has descended from a lower order of animals."

His honor then read the statute and as a basis for judgment read the first chapter of Genesis.

In the beginning God created the heaven and the earth—down to—

"and God saw everything that He had made, and behold, it was very good, and the evening and the morning were the sixth day."

The jurors looked as if they were in church. They proceeded to go to their jury room and vote a true bill, which was a way of saying amen to the sermon.

As to the law involved, the court instructed them as follows:

"The vital question now involved for your consideration is Has this statute been violated? If it has, becomes our duty to uphold the law and preserve its integrity."

The jurors retired at 10:30 and were back at 11:30 with their verdict. Both sides sat down waiting to conference in preparation for the trial. They are somewhat staggered by the immensity of the problem presented.

It is suggested that James Harvey Robinson, author of "The Mind in the Making," Hendrick Van Loon, H. G. Wells, Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick, and other greats here, and that Volney, who is said to hold that the earth is flat, be sent for.

gation is only for one purpose. It is to intimidate jurors in the Shepherd case. The state's attorney knows he has no case against Shepherd and he is trying to bolster himself up by conducting or announcing investigations which will create propaganda for his side.

"If my partner and myself have done anything wrong, why didn't they conduct an investigation long ago? If they wanted to be fair in this case they could wait until a fair and impartial trial has been had and then conduct an investigation. The statute of limitations will not expire by the time the Shepherd case is over."

"The action of the state in the Shepherd case certainly shows poor sportsmanship."

Henry for White.

The latest letter from White—and Assistant State's Attorney Savage said he was convinced it was from White—sent detective from the state's office to several directions. Detective Sergeant James L. Devereux was sent to Philadelphia and New York with all the information available as to where in those cities White might be found. At the same time detectives started locally to hunt for "Jew" Golden, named in White's letter as one of the men who threatened him.

State's Attorney Crowe said Golden is known to him as a beer runner and in that role had many. Savage said White had mentioned to him recently that Golden had visited him on a previous occasion. Here is what the letter says:

"Hon. Mr. Savage:
In reference to those articles in the newspapers about me being bribed, I wish to state right now that there never was a greater liar living than that Mr. William Adams. In the first place, I haven't spoken to that man in the last three months and furthermore I wouldn't tell anybody my business."

"Mr. Savage, I left because I was threatened with bodily harm and also compelled to make a statement against my wishes. I did not receive one cent, did not ask for any, and above all I am not for sale. I left because I was in fear for all the time I was in Chicago, and I am completely broken in health. I am resting up a bit now, and will be on hand to see justice done."

"The statement I made to W. W. O'Brien got no attention to. That was mere under threat. Shepherd is guilty, I must admit, and I still stick to what I said. I was in danger with my life, and I will explain all when I return."

A Nervous Wreck.

"I am with the state's attorney's office to see justice done and I hope you hang that Shepherd. Listen to no stories from any one because it's all lies, but it's true I was compelled to leave or else get killed. I am a complete nervous wreck. That Shepherd bunch made me so, but I will return to fight them to a finish when the jury is all ready. Above all things do not listen to Adams. Mr. Savage, I think more of my word and honor than all the money in the world."

"And I would not have done what I did if I had not been compelled to. Mr. Savage, keep up the good fight. Arrest Burns of the Order of the Owls at 68 Washington street; arrest Mr. Hilly, alias J. J. Kelly, from 63d place; arrest Jew Golden—Kelly knows that these men are responsible for my hurried departure, and I will be down in Chicago to expose all that crooked bunch."

"My wife is sick at the present time from all this worrying, but you can guarantee on the basis of what the trial opens."

Very truly yours,

"Dr. Roscoe White."

Relatives in East.

Information was given Mr. Crowe that White's mother and family live in New York City and that he may be with his people there employing the well known trick of "running up to Philadelphia" to mail the letter to Chicago.

Eastern newspapers this morning are printing articles addressed to White promising him full protection if he will communicate with Mr. Crowe.

Caleb J. Brinton, inspector of the detective division of the Philadelphia police department, late in the day wanted to know by telegraph whether the state attorney held a fugitive warrant for White.

Whether this indicated he knew anything of White's whereabouts is not known, but Mr. Crowe wired back that White could be held on a warrant for the larceny of an automobile—the car he rented from the Rent-A-Car company, leaving a $45 deposit, which he drove his family away in, and which, according to his letters, he has been afraid of his life to come back in.

No headway was made yesterday in the trial of the Shepherd jury.

The first panel of four jurors accepted by both sides last Friday had not been added to at the end of the day, and only one added juror remained tentatively accepted by both sides when court adjourned until this morning.

New Extension of North Shore Line

Although construction has only recently begun on the new Niles Center-Lake Forest high-speed extension of the North Shore Line, property purchasers in this new transportation area have already had opportunities to dispose of their holdings at a profit.

Much of the Nixon property in and around Glenview, the first suburb on the new North Shore Line, has been disposed of. Yet there are a number of attractively priced lots still available to those wishing to locate in the Forest Preserve or Golf View additions to Glenview.

Opening, now, is a second desirable suburban locality, known as the Forest Ridge addition to Highland Park, beautifully situated on a high dry ridge adjacent to such permanent improvements as Forest Preserves and Golf Clubs—close not only to the new North Shore Line's right of way, but also to the 82 ft. wide Skokie Boulevard now being built.

These New North Shore Towns
Are the Suburbs of the Future

The Forest Ridge section of Highland Park is bound to rank high before long among Chicago's "Blue Book" suburban localities. Nowhere, even in the heart of nearby Wilmette, Winnetka, Kenilworth, Highland Park or Lake Forest were opportunities ever offered that compare with this Nixon Forest Ridge property.

While within the corporate limits of Highland Park, Forest Ridge is really suburban to that populous community—just far enough removed from the hustle and bustle of a large town, yet participating in the police protection, the fire protection, the sewer and water supply that have made Highland Park notable among American municipalities of its character.

This time of year puts the lure of the suburbs into one's blood and people desirous of locating outside of Chicago are flocking to these unexpected opportunities that the construction of the new North Shore Line makes available. Do not wait. Get busy at once. Choice locations in the Forest Ridge addition to Highland Park are yours at immoderately low prices if you act at once. FEAR NEW BLOW AT COOK COUNTY IN TAX PROPOSAL

Lantz Resolution Will Be Called Up This Week.

BY OSCAR HEWITT
(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)

Springfield, Ill., May 25.—Comparatively few persons realize that, with reasonable certainty, Cook county will be one-half of the population of the state of Illinois within four years and seven months. It is probable that it will have reached this point within three years.

Conservatively estimated, Cook county—the most populous county of any in the nation by more than 750,000 people—will have 48.87 per cent of the state's population. In 1920 it had 47.91 per cent. Following the numerical rate of increase for the decennial period between 1910 and 1920, the state in 1925 will have 7,247,301 inhabitants and Cook county will have 3,636,023. That indicates Cook county at that time will have 12,373 persons more than a majority of the whole state.

Based on Average Rate.

This estimate is on the basis of the average numerical rate of increase, but if the rule of the decreasing percentage rate of increase is used in projecting the state and Cook county populations, and some regard is allowed the trend between rural and urban population, it is probable that Cook county will have half of the state's population late in 1928, instead of in December, 1925, as by the other method of reckoning.

With 48.87 per cent of the population, Cook county has only 27.35 per cent of the general assembly. It has 13 senators, while the constitution "guarantees," theoretically, 24 senators, according to the estimated population. Cook county has 57 members of the house, as against a just constitutional claim to more than 74.

Yet the senate last Thursday adopted the Hicks resolution by a vote of 33 to 5, and the resolution is necessarily intended to restrict and limit Cook county's representation in the general assembly.

Will Ask Reconsideration.

Senator Mason, who changed his vote in order to permit him to move a resolution to provide that tonight he will make that motion tomorrow.

But the Hicks resolution is not half the dose. Senator Lantz has another resolution, which, he said today, he will call up for passage this week, perhaps tomorrow. This indicates that Senator Lantz believes that he has more than three-fifths of the senate in favor of amending the constitution so that the general assembly shall have authority to provide by general law for the levy and collection of taxes for public purposes upon persons, property and income free from the limitation contained in section one, three, nine, and ten or article ten, and that taxes levied under this authority "shall be

G. H. WILLIAMS OF ST. LOUIS, SPENCER'S SENATE SUCCESSOR

Jefferson City, Mo., May 25.—(AP)—The appointment of G. H. Williams of St. Louis to succeed the late United States Senator Seiden P. Spencer was announced today by Gov. Samuel Baker.

Mr. Williams, who has accepted the appointment, was born Dec. 1, 1872, at California, Mo. He was educated in the California high school in 1889; graduated from Princeton University with an A. B. degree in 1894, and received his law degree at Washington university, St. Louis, in 1897.

He married Harriet Chase Stewart June 12, 1898, at St. Louis. They have two sons, Stewart and Howard.

Mr. Williams is a member of the law firm, Bryan, Williams and Cave, St. Louis.

uniform upon all persons, property, or income of the same class."

The effects of this amendment are uncertain. While Cook county now has only 27.35 per cent of the legislature, it paid 44.12 per cent of the all state taxes collected in 1923. The collections in 1924 are not now available.

Possibly, under the Lantz proposal the legislature would have authority to reduce Cook county's taxes to the percentage of members it will have in the general assembly under the Hicks proposal. Of course, the population of Cook county, in four years and seven months, with a minority of the state's population, will have a majority of the legislature to levy and collect taxes from the majority population in Cook county.

Twenty-four years ago, when the state was last redistricted, Cook county had 38.13 per cent of the state's population, but obtained 27.25 per cent in 1911.

The state's basic law contemplates that the people shall have representation in the legislature, according to their number, regardless of their ability to pay taxes, but the question is asked by many is: Why deny that representation and at the same time boost the tax inequity of those denied fair representation?

The indirect tax of automobile license fees supplies an illustration. Cook county last year paid $9.50 per cent of the auto license fees, but had about that percentage of the automobile of the state, of which there were upwards of 1,000,000. Yet it is represented that Cook county has obtained 343 miles of hard roads out of a total of 4,612 constructed in the state.

Road Building Inquiry.

Now it is different. Direct taxes are only portion of the state's income. Indirect taxes make up a considerable part today. To obtain an accurate estimate of the aggregate fees, license fees and other indirect levies must be added to the direct property taxes. It can be stated on the authority of official state publications that Cook county paid 44.12 per cent of the direct property taxes collected in 1923. It has been paying a larger part of the direct state taxes than it has had representation in the law making body. No one has objected to such tax payments while Cook county was given the representation in the general assembly which the constitution "guarantees."

Cook county in 1923 paid 42.58 per cent of the state's direct property taxes, 41.79 per cent in 1921, 41.59 per cent in 1920, 43.71 per cent in 1919, 42.45 per cent in 1918, 44.09 per cent in 1917, 42.29 per cent in 1916, 43.67 per cent in 1915, 41.08 per cent in 1914, 42.77 per cent in 1913, 35.32 per cent in 1912, and 41.47 per cent in 1911.

That was the year in which the state should have been redistricted, according to the provisions of the state constitution, which the legislators, in their oaths of office, swore to obey. Gov. Al Smith Gives Up Old Home on East Side

New York, May 25.—[Special]—It became known today that Gov. Alfred E. Smith had decided to relinquish his title as "King of Oliver street," on the East Side, and quit his old home at No. 26, in the district in which the foundation of his political fortune was laid.

Workmen were observed removing the government dining room furniture. It is understood that the governor gave up the house so that St. James Catholic church could use it for school expansion.

The Recovery from the Spending Orgy

Nations are only private families on a larger scale. When a private family has had a long period of illness or other disruption from the routine, it finds it difficult to settle down to normal living right after the crisis is over. The housekeeping is not apt to be done so well, tempers fly off easily, and there is a desire to "go on a tear" for amusement. This is nature's way of lessening the body from the strain of fighting disease or hard times, or whatever the fight has been.

It is not so strange then that the nations have now just begun to get back from the strain of war. Being larger bodies, they react more slowly. Our country, the youngest, has perhaps most nearly recovered.

In the banking world, we have heard much of the orgy of spending that usually some people indulged in. For a time it was disturbing. Girls with small salaries spent their Liberty bonds for fur coats; young men were more extravagant; young married people spent every cent on the day's living; old manufacturers had to be counseled against a "jag" of unwarranted plant expansion.

But this year things are a great deal better. Girls and young men are dressing more in keeping with their incomes. Young married people are saving to buy homes. Every individual, of course, hasn't "come back." Sensational developments show here and there. But we know that the normal now allures most people. They are spending less wastefully, which is a first step toward saving intelligently.

PRETTY SOFT FOR MR. SCOPES.

When Gov. Peay of Tennessee signed the act making it unlawful to teach any theory of creation not authenticated by Genesis he said that the law would stop the destructive influences of irreligious doctrine and save the freemen in their faith. He also said that it was one of those laws to which no one would pay any attention and no one aimed to make any trouble with it.

This was accepted as a nice example of a responsible son of freedom chasing himself up a stump and as probably the sages comment which could be made upon that particular bit of legislation. The trouble with his prediction was that the law was too good to be ignored.

It was a cinch that as soon as late spring saw many of Mr. Bryan's real estate prospects leaving Florida, he would look around for some means of making page one in all editions and would recognize this Tennessee law as the country's best bet in an of political season. The only other thing in sight was the Windsor real estate field, where the legal sale of Canada beer has made a market almost as good as Bermuda booze made in Florida, where Mr. Bryan is a persuasive realtor in the winter. Canada might have tempted him, but young Mr. T. J. Scopes, the biology teacher, put that out of the question by rigging up the case in which he offers his young life in the cause of science.

All the volunteers, pro and con, including our own Mr. Darrow and Dudley Field Malone, Paris divorce expert, are looking forward to a pleasant summer, but none other with quite the zest of Mr. Bryan. For him this is duck soup. It is his law and Tennessee was the first state in which he had complete success.

There are circles in which Mr. Bryan is regarded as little less than an agent of darkness. Our own Mr. Voliva, who knows that the world is flat, thinks of him as a perverter of faith, quite as dangerous as Clarence Darrow, and if he found him on the streets of Zion would lock him up until he admitted that the earth was the shape of a pancake.

Young Mr. Scopes is waiting his fate with placid courage, with greater resolution than either Galileo or Copernicus displayed. For this there may be a reason. Although Mr. Bryan is earnest and determined his style will be cramped. Modernism already has made it difficult for seal to get a real play. The young man, to begin with, is not on trial for his life in the case. The bailiff is not preparing for the hearing by cutting up a cord of free burning wood, testing a good hemp rope, or practicing fire swings with a large ax on a block.

It will be impossible to question the young man properly as to his biological theories. If Mr. Bryan could hold court in the town smithy, with a good furnace and some zealous assistants, the proper forms might be complied with. Much error has been found and admitted after applications of red hot pincers and an understanding of great truths thus come by, to the edification of whole communities.

Times have changed, but Mr. Bryan may say that he is not responsible for that and if he does he will be believed. The fact that the young man if found guilty may only lose his job or some money in a case does much to detract from the heart interest in the case.

Scopes cannot hope to be a male Joan of Arc.

THE DUNES PARK.

Gov. Jackson of Indiana has announced that $200,000 of the $2,000,000 which was voted for the purpose by the Indiana legislature is to be spent at once in acquiring land for the Dunes park. Chicagoans have pledged another $1,000,000. Eventually the greeve will contain 8,000 acres, including several miles of shore line.

Here is a genuine civic accomplishment which should prove of value to the industrial communities of northern Indiana and of even greater value to the thousands of Chicagoans to whom the dune land has become a favorite playground. Nowhere else within hundreds of miles can the city dweller achieve the feeling of utter isolation which he craves as an antidote to the crowded hours of urban life. Nowhere else in this vicinity is the land so nearly in its virgin state or the wild life so untrammeled. It is the happy hunting ground for naturalists and nature lovers.

There are a few genuine lovers of the dunes who resent the creation of the park because they fear the coming of thousands of crass tourists who otherwise might pass the place by. The old timers are saying their dunes will be spoiled by the erection of bathing pavilions where now nothing marks the clean sweep of the shore line; they fear the shore will be dotted with hot-dog stands, as objectionable under state license as under no license.

The park and the regulations must be accepted, however, or else in a few years there will be no dunes at all. Industry is creeping down from Gary and Michigan City and unless the movement is checked the dunes land will be swallowed up in factories. We believe that many of the unfortunate nates consequences which might follow the creation of the park can be obviated by a wise administration, which will bar all amusement contraptions and will impose only those regulations which are necessary to the preservation of the land in a state of nature.

DEFECTIVES AT LARGE.

Two men who were arrested Sunday for offenses against children were found to have a record for sex offenses. One confessed to having served six months in the Bridewell for an attack upon a woman. He is 27 years of age. If he was guilty of the attack the six months' term was a farce. In the case of the other culprit we are told he was fined $100 and on probation on complaint of two women. Evidently the warning was unavailing, and his accosting two children indicates a vicious tendency deserving of more serious attention.

Probably neither man ought to be at large at all. There are too many of their kind running loose, a menace to children and women. Merely fining them or sending them to the Bridewell is an evasive crime.

Some of our judges are as much out of place on the bench as the criminals who appear before them.

BROADER TRAINING FOR OUR OFFICERS.

Upon graduation from West Point young officers of the regular army are given choice of commissions in the four principal branches of the service according to their records at the school. The first choice is for engineers, the second for the cavalry, the third for the artillery, and those who are left may go into the infantry, which does most of the work in war and is undeniably the most important of all constituents of a fighting force—"the queen of battles," as Napoleon called it.

Obviously these standards of preference are not military, but we are not discussing the reasons for them, which are well enough known. We may say in passing that the army engineer in peace time is concerned almost wholly with civil work such as drainage and flood control, and we think, without disparagement of the army engineers, this work should be taken out of the war department and put into the hands of civilian engineers. But it gets the highest stand men from the military academy, except in cases of strong personal preference for the military profession proper. Personal preference may also sometimes override the special considerations which make the normal preference we have named, but they are exceptions.

What we are interested in here is the system of commissioning an officer in a particular branch of the service and retaining him in that branch until he reaches general rank. This is to put a premium on or compel one-sided knowledge and experience and prevent the officer from attaining the rounded knowledge he needs when he becomes a general who must handle all arms. The officer who has remained in the infantry is likely to lack skill in the use of cavalry and artillery, and the officer experienced in one of the latter arms is likely to be weak in infantry tactics. Instances were plentiful in the late war of this illogical and shortsighted system. An infantry attack without adequate artillery preparation was not the rarest of blunders in our operations, and a thorough analysis of the tactics of the A. E. F. would sustain, we are confident, our plea for experience in the four principal branches and the new aviation service.

The persistence of the present system is one of the many evidences of the uncritical conservatism of military habit. It is a survival of the early conditions of professional arms, when a man entered the service by buying a commission in a particular regiment from its officers and expected to remain in it for life. Regiments had then a personal individuality, were often named after a patron, like the Regiment Condé or the Queen's Guards, and they were social as well as military units of a definite and permanent character. There should be no borrowing from such a system in a modern military organization, and especially not in ours. Our officers should be commissioned in all principal branches of the service, so that when they rise to the command of a mixed force or tactical unit they will know how to apply all of its resources. And this principle should be adopted so far as practicable in the training of the reserve.

It will be impossible to question the young man properly as to his biological theories. If Mr. Bryan could hold court in the town smithy, with a good furnace and some zealous assistants, the proper forms might be complied with. Much error has been found and admitted after applications of red hot pincers and an understanding of great truths thus come by, to the edification of whole communities.

LET THEM LAUGH THIS OFF.

Many Englishmen have been willing to concede that for the most part an American was the work of an all wise Providence. An all wise Providence would know the purpose to be accomplished, and that would explain what otherwise was inexplicable, such as the American's manner of speech, his habit of singing "How do you do, Mr. Brown, how are you?", his belief that there is a sense of humor, his eagerness to go nowhere very rapidly.

Englishmen take most of the works of an all wise Providence for granted, and most Englishmen will take all of them anyhow, anywhere, and any time they can be had, as is much complained of by the East Indians, Egyptians, various black Africans, and other peoples of the earth.

Even the most generous Englishmen have thought that certain particulars of American habit and makeup were the American's own fault and not to be explained as acts of God. Of such have been chewing gum, baseball, and horn rim glasses.

None of these, it was thought abroad, could be attributed to a just and merciful power by any one whose religious training had been what it should be.

The conventional formula to indicate an American in the English and continental comic was a pair of horn rimmed glasses. That was a trite hallmark than the sombrero. Horn rimmed glasses on a figure lost in an impenetrable forest of lamp posts or on groups of figures in drinking places preparing to be lost in such forests indicated without further legend that the manumitted Veletians were doing Europe.

The owlish lamps of the big eyed Americans seemed properly to represent his gauche and feeble life, his aimless gregariousness, and his lack of relationship to anything past or anything promised. But it is dangerous to trifles with a conquering race. The first thing you know its people are in the senate chamber of the mighty and pulling the whiskers of the conscript fathers to see if they are real or false.

The English ought to have been warned when they found they were dancing to jazz and were accepting Doug Fairbanks as Robin Hood. They were in the clutches of American music and American movies. It was useless for them to retaliate by accepting "Main Street" as a realistic picture of American life or Babbitt as a typical American. They had begun to take their culture from the U. S. A.

Elmer Finds Boreal Blast Boon to Radio

Out of the East Rolled Waves of Music.

BY ELMER DOUGLASS.

At this, the 11 o'clock hour, I have given the dials a final sweep, and seemingly at every third notch there is something coming in clear and strong. Apparently our present cold snap has brought with it almost winter receiving conditions. There was but little static. The programs were sufficiently interesting to keep one always interested.

However, this ideal, unusual condition was not the case throughout the evening. From 7 to 9 nothing was heard satisfactorily at this receiving point except the nearby Chicago stations, the sunlight having quite sufficiently vamped the distant stations.

The Victor Herbert memorial program at WTAM, Cleveland, heard off and on from 8 until 11, was of singular beauty and interest. The selections from a dozen or more operas were well chosen. The soloists were accompanied by the orchestra. All in all, this was a fine illustration of how well Victor Herbert understood writing pleasing melodies, and happy, pleasing, and clever orchestration. The entire presentation was well handled, reflecting great care in its preparation.

KDKA, Pittsburgh, had a severely classical program, but so dryly classified that it didn't interest this listener at this distance.

WMAK, Lockport—I don't know what to think about that station's levity in the announcing. I half smiled, I know that much.

At 10:30 a band was heard at WCCO, Minneapolis-St. Paul, in medley of airs, including Chopin's Funeral March. Station seldom heard at this point.

"When," WHT, Dearfield-Chicago, changed from their 400 to their 235 wave length at 8:30, the audience was asked to advise how they came on in the lower wave length. Poor as ever, yes, sir, on my set. How strange—clear as a bell on 400 meters, a fine muddle on 235 meters.

There was a radio address from WCAP, Washington, at 10:45 on Bryan and Durrow, with special reference to the Tennessee evolution trial. The way these two opposing characters were analyzed, first separately, then compared together, was a wonder.

The dance orchestra selections from the Cincinnati Zoo, from WLW, seem thinner and lighter this year than they did last year—sophistication, presumably.

The Imperial Male quartet at WCAP, Washington, coming in nearly as clear as the "dumb" on the Sunday Evening Club [KFW]. "Sand Man" [Daniel Protheroe] has just been sung.

COOLIDGE SETS JULY 4TH FOR DEFENSE TEST

Washington, D. C., May 25.—(AP)—The second national defense test will be held July 4.

President Coolidge today rejected the war department proposal that the muster be held on Armistice day, Nov. 11, instead of July 4. The Indians, Indians, Indians! Indians, Indians, Indians! Indians, Indians, Indians!

In his letter to Acting Secretary Davis the President did not explain his reason for rejecting the Armistice day suggestion, saying merely "I do not approve your proposal that it be held on Armistice day."

DIES WHILE HE'S ASLEEP.
Carl Elstrom, 45, of 10805 South Michigan avenue, a real estate salesman, died suddenly in his home yesterday. He appeared to be asleep until his wife attempted to awaken him.

DRAW DETROIT NET TIGHTER ON RUM SMUGGLERS

Detroit, Mich., May 25.—(Special)

Appointment of a new commander of the government's dry navy here and reports that more boats and agents to man them are on the way, gave additional evidence tonight that liquor running from Canada will be a truly hazardous occupation within the next few months.

The new commander is J. T. Breerton of Chicago, veteran federal prohibition agent. His arrival was simultaneous with that of Roy A. Hayes, federal prohibition commissioner.

The first of a fleet of fast rum chasers will arrive early in June and will be put into immediate action. Plans of both state and federal officials call for closer cooperation than ever before.

A blockade of the Clinton river, chief hangout of the smugglers, was inaugurated today.

PRESBYTERIANS STRIKE BLOW AT BITTER ENDERS

Fundamentalism Beaten
After Sharp Debate.

Columbus, O., May 25 (AP)—Militant fundamentalism was dealt another blow at the Presbyterian annual assembly today, when a proposal which may result in union of the Presbyterian church in the United States and the Congregational church was defeated.

The 1,000 commissioners voted "no" in the fact of a statement by Dr. Clarence MacArtney of Philadelphia, former moderator, that such a step would "split the Presbyterian church wide open."

Debate on the issue at times became heated and personal. The proposal was embodied in report of the church's department of church cooperation and union, presented by Dr. J. Ross Stevenson of Princeton, N. J.

The recommendations adopted provides that Presbyterians and Friends may work out plans for greater cooperation between the Congregationalists and Presbyterians and that measures be taken for a closer union of the denominations' work in the foreign mission field.

MACARTNEY.

The Cleveland, O., Free Presbyterian sponsored the first recommendation, and it has been approved, Dr. Stevenson said, by eighty-nine other Presbyteries.

"The Presbyterian church stands at the highways today," said the Rev. Joel M. Haydn of Cleveland, speaking for the proposal of whether to perpetuate a denomination or to unite in the work of the living Christ.

"I submit that there is only one job for all Christians, that the Presbyterian church, instead of having strength to fight for its own creeds and doctrines, has strength to love one another as Christians."

Amendment Defeated.

Favorable action on the recommendation came after an amendment, offered by Rev. Henry B. Kirkland, Germantown, Pa., which would have held up the cooperative steps, was voted down.

Mr. Kirkland asserted that union between the two denominations is impossible. He said that Congregational leaders are "committed to a rationalistic, liberal faith, akin to Unitarianism."

"The Presbyterian church would have to surrender its creedal beliefs and doctrines for such union," Dr. MacArtney, one of the leaders of the ultra-fundamentalists, declared. "The movement is decisive. If you want to split the Presbyterian church wide open, you must be willing to carry on changes with the Congregational body."

He asserted that the merger of Presbyterians, Congregationalists and Methodists in Canada has been "tragic" for the first denomination. The Rev. J. Duncan Harley of Whitefish, Mont., declared the statement a falsehood.

"There is no more forward movement in the world today for Christianity than that in Canada," he said.

"I brand as a falsehood the statement that it is tragic. If the assembly is going to turn down this proposal, I want to leave the Presbyterian church and join a Christian church."

The way was cleared today for a final settlement tomorrow of the dispute which has centered around the New York Presbytery and the First church there for permitting Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick to occupy the pulpit of the First church.

An amendment to a resolution condemning Sunday amusements, which was intended to include Sunday newspapers, was decisively beaten.

"I submit that there is only one job for all Christians, that the Presbyterian church, instead of having strength to fight for its own creeds and doctrines, has strength to love one another as Christians."

ROME, May 25 (AP)—The popes granted private audiences to the Rev. John J. Dunn of New York City, bishop of the Diocese of Brooklyn, New York, and to the Rev. John B. MacCloskey, of Fresno, Calif., bishop of the Monterey-Fresno Diocese. The pontiff graciously consented to each of the visitors to take them of the list of the holy year pilgrimages to Rome this year.

Newburyport, Mass., May 25.—Spectator—Harry A. Kirby, arrested here today in connection with the abduction and murder of Miss Aida Hayward at Whittemore, Mass., was taken back to Massachusetts today by officers of that state.

His wife told Chief Fred H. Sandborn of the Maine state police of her marriage to Kirby, who was then using the name of James Joseph Crawford.

(P. and A. Photo.) [AIDA HAYWARD, May 25.—Spectator—Harry A. Kirby, arrested here today in connection with the abduction and murder of Miss Aida Hayward at Whittemore, Mass., was taken back to Massachusetts today by officers of that state.]

Kirby was arrested on three war

rds, one charging murder, another attempted murder, and a third arson,

the latter two dealing with the shooting of Mrs. Emma Towns, aunt of the murdered girl.

Suffered for Many Years.

Mrs. Thorne had been suffering for several years from the ailment which became acute about a week ago. It was decided to operate on Saturday. She was removed from the Thorne Lake Forest estate where she had been the last thirteen years.

She is survived by her children, Charles H. George A. James W. Hobart J. and Mrs. Reuben H. Donnelly.

She divided with them a fortune of more than $2,000,000 at the death of her husband. The Thorne building on McKinlock campus is to be like another building dedicated to Mr. Ward.

Born in Kalamazoo.

Mrs. Thorne was born in Kalamazoo, Mich., on Aug. 15, 1843. Her name was Eliza M. Cobb when she married, then just starting his career as a store clerk.

Of her original family two sisters survive—Mrs. A. Montgomery Ward and Mrs. John G. Hoit, Oak Park.

Funeral services will be held at 3 o'clock tomorrow afternoon from the Lake Forest home. Burial will be in Rosehill cemetery. The pall bearers will be the four sons, Mr. Donnelly, and Sarah Ellen, and James O. Hinkley, long time friend of the Thorne family.

DON'T MARRY FAT MAN, IS WARNING OF ONE WHO DID

For Her Honeymoon Was Simply "Horrid."

BY M. WILLIAM LAMSON.
George Knapp, 55 years old, weight 255 pounds and therefore considerably plump, and Mrs. George Knapp, 32 years old, weight 95 pounds and as slim as can be, met and were married just fifteen days ago.

Yesterday in Judge Howard Hayes' court, the Knapps (that is Mrs. Knapp, now) reported to an end to their "horrid honeymoon" that started fifteen minutes after she had been married to her hefty boy chum.

No Demonstration Asked.
She displayed bruising on her neck and face, and said she had bruises "everywhere." Judge Hayes politely convinced her that he believed this and that a demonstration was entirely unnecessary. Then he told her to tell her story.

"Your honor, this beefy person and myself were united in holy matrimony just 15 days ago, and the very next morning after we were united he grabbed me playfully around the neck and starts in choking me. Well, your honor, I thought he was playing, but pretty soon I starts in seeing beautiful little stars and finally more stars and bang, I passes out."

The Husband's Story.

Then it was Mr. Knapp's turn: "She caused them there bruises, herself, judge," he explained. "She tried to make a home run off my head with a club. I tried to take the plank away from her and when I would my hold why, this woman just wriggled around and took it. Anyway I'm sorry as the devil that I married her."

"So am I," snapped Mrs. Knapp. "Never marry a fat guy, that's my slogan," she added.

"Guess you need a divorce then," Judge Hayes said. "I'll continue this case to Nov. 1 to give you both a chance to decide."

3 CANADIAN GIRLS KILL JAIL MATRON AND MAKE ESCAPE

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)
Toronto, Ont., May 25.—Two girls of 16 and another aged 21, prisoners in the municipal jail farm, this morning attacked Mrs. Margaret Mick, the night matron, and strangled her to death. They then took her keys and escaped.

The girls were Isobel Prouse, Bessie Carroll, 16, and Jennie McMinn, 18. The McMinn girl was arrested shortly after the escape, and it is expected the other two will be taken soon.

The story of the crime was told by Gladys Palmer, another prisoner, who stated that she refused to join the girls in their escape. She told how she had heard them lure the matron into the corridor on which their cells stood with a tale of sickness. Then she said she heard the victim's struggle, her cries for help growing feebler and feebler.

TURKEY SEIZES NEW LEAGUE OF NATIONS' FLAG

CONSTANTINOPLE, May 25.—The new league of nations flag has been seized by the Turks and has been prohibited from being flown here. The straits commission, which was created under the straits convention annex to the Lausanne treaty to report on the number of warships entering the Black sea and other matters, decided recently that it had to have a league of nations flag. It chose a dark blue color with two golden bars crossed.

"I have seized this flag by order of my government," said Admiral Vassif Pasha, the Turkish delegate on the commission. The other delegates almost had apoplexy. "I do not recommend that my government has sent a policeman here," he continued, "and if anyone attempts to raise such a flag, the policeman will immediately tear it down."

Slayers of Viking Express Guard Get 25 Years Each

Circuit Judge C. C. Edwards at Waukegan yesterday imposed penitentiary sentences of 25 years each on Bernhardt Mylin and Edward J. Smith, recently convicted of slaying Russell Sage Dickey, express messenger on the Chicago and Northwestern's Viking express. With good behavior the men may gain their freedom in thirteen years.

NEW Crawford Avenue Power House Formally Opens

160,000 kilowatts now in operation; equipment ordered for 77,000 kilowatts. General plans made for ultimate capacity of 750,000 kilowatts.

THE RAPID and constant expansion of Chicago's area and population has made it necessary for Commonwealth Edison Company to be ready always with power and lighting facilities that are a long step ahead of any immediate need.

Just as the construction of the Fisk Street Generating Station was years ahead of the city's power and lighting requirements of 1903, just as the Quarry Street Generating Station anticipated the needs of 1910, just as the Northwest Generating Station, opened in 1912, and the Calumet Generating Station, opened in 1921, were each ahead of their day in power-producing capacity, so the new Crawford Avenue Generating Station, now opened, is intended to meet demands for electric service that are not yet apparent.

The past few years have indicated that the consumption of electricity is increasing immeasurably faster than the city's increase in population, due to the public's practically instantaneous acceptance and employment of each new application of electricity that has been developed.

As a public utility, with a primary obligation to deliver an adequate supply of electrical energy to this community at all times, Commonwealth Edison Company has endeavored to estimate with as much accuracy as is possible what the years immediately following 1925 will exact of it in the Chicago area.

The latest step in this constant policy of preparedness is this new Crawford Avenue generating station located in a 72-acre tract of land on the Drainage Canal at Crawford Avenue and 39th Street.

Despite these successive large demands upon the Company for the extension and multiplication of properties and equipment, rates for electric service have never been raised. On the contrary, just as fast as growth of the Company, development of the industry and inauguration of economies have allowed, lower costs have been passed on to customers in reduction of rates.

SOVIETS PREPARE BIG OFFENSIVE TO CRUSH ROUMANIA

Plan Red Republics for All Balkan States.

BY RAYMOND FENDRICK.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

CONSTANTINOPLE, May 25.—The Tribune learns that soviet Russia has decided to launch a terrific offensive against Roumania before midsummer.

This was the reason that Leon Trot-sky, former war minister, was called to Moscow, and eventually he will either command the army in the field or become a minister.

The first Russian objective will be to take Bessarabia, the second will be to establish a soviet republic in Bucha-aria, the third will be to establish a soviet republic in Sofia, and beyond that the Red general staff has vague hopes that the Greek and Jugo-Slav governments will be seriously weakened or overthrown.

As Roumania and Poland have a defensive alliance against Russia, the soviet government plans to hold Poland

in check by establishing a soviet republic in Polish Galicia, with Lemberg as the capital. The soviets consider, apart from the pressing Russian internal situation, that an ideal time has come for a Balkan adventure because of domestic trouble in Roumania and Bulgaria.

French and English Involved.
Furthermore, the French are becoming deeply involved in Morocco, the English position in Mesopotamia is being menaced by 250,000 Turkish troops, and parts of Greece and Jugo-Slavia are seething with revolt.

Another reason for their plan is that the Bolsheviks want to establish a strong soviet republic in Bulgaria, which is the key point to the Balkans. The details of this offensive reached THE TRIBUNE from three confidential sources. All agree that the Red general staff is preparing to throw 1,000,000 men across the Danube river into Bessarabia in the neighborhood of Kamenets Podolsk. One Red army will march to Bucharest and another will try to trap the Roumanian army along the Danube.

Plan to Break Up Roumania.
The soviets plan to break up Roumania by seizing Bessarabia, by returning the Dobruja to Bulgaria, and by letting the Hungarians take Transylvania back again. The Red staff is confident that a Galician uprising and the German menace will hold back Poland, while France would not dare to be involved in Morocco and Roumania at the same time.

FREDERICK TICE, PHYSICIAN, GETS LICENSE TO WED

A marriage license was issued at Crown Point, Ind., yesterday to Dr. Frederick Tice, widely known medical consultant, with offices at 25 East Washington street, and Mrs. Edna E. Tice of Chicago, a widow of a cousin of Dr. Tice. The age of Dr. Tice was 55 years and that of Mrs. Tice as 35. It was said at Dr. Tice's home, 2504 West Adams street, last night that it was not known whether the couple had been married.

Dr. Tice's first wife died Oct. 20, 1912. Her death was hastened, it was said at the time, by overwork with the Red Cross during the influenza epidemic.

Juanhoe A Community of Distinction.

The Roll Call Continues!

20,000 persons are invited to secure free, first-hand, advance information regarding this superior property while preparations are being completed for the gigantic sale!!

Names are pouring in! Names of hundreds who want to locate future homes on the wonderful I. C. Electrified Suburban Service (only 30 minutes out), and names of hundreds that are eager to seize upon the greatest real estate investment opportunity since World's Fair days.

These foreseen persons are more fortunate than they realize, because they are securing THREE tremendous advantages which in the light of our next two months' developments mean golden profits for the favored few. These advantages are:

- (1) Privilege of inspecting IVANHOE in advance of the Big Opening Sale.
- (2) Option on the choicest locations.
- (3) Opportunity to later buy in the first unit—THE BARGAIN UNIT—at a substantial discount.

And these privileges carry no obligation to buy. They merely afford you a chance to inform yourself thoroughly regarding IVANHOE in advance of the general buying wave which is to follow.

We are taking this poll of the Chicago investing and homeseeking public in advance of our big coming operation in order to save everybody's time and to prevent the later wastage of money in advertising which might be lavished in addressing millions, whereas our message is intended only for 20,000 pairs of eyes.

We want to communicate direct with just 20,000 persons, for surely ONE OUT OF FIVE will later want to buy in IVANHOE, and there are only 4,000 parcels to be offered.

We are arranging a big party of preliminary inspection for these 20,000 anticipated guests, and invitation will be by letter only.

Turn your $$ quickly!

In a huge operation like this, the biggest profits very naturally go to the early buyers. By registering your name now, you can later reserve any lot or lots in IVANHOE in advance of the coming Big Opening Sale!!

IVANHOE's low prices will amaze those who are familiar with the unexampled qualities of the property—it's unapproached desirability.

At these low prices—fully $1,000,000 under IVANHOE's true worth—the most brilliant Real Estate speculation since World's Fair days is offered the Chicago man or woman who can command $200 or $300 in quick cash. Only the most hopeless pessimist could see a possible chance to lose in this remarkable speculative investment.

Chicago would have to go backward and Illinois Central Electrification would have to prove a pipe-dream before any investor in IVANHOE could hardly lose.

Chicago, however, will continue to add her regular 80,000 to 100,000 yearly population in the days to come, and ILLINOIS CENTRAL Electrification is far under way and will be positively completed by Dec. 31st, 1926 (official).

Illinois Central Electrification means the biggest boom in Chicago Real Estate history for choice property along the I. C. right of way.

IVANHOE is the largest, the finest, the nearest in reality development on the I. C.—the railroad bisects our property—we will have 30-minute service to Grant Park.

RAILROADS SPLIT OVER SITE FOR NEW TERMINAL

Location of the proposed $300,000,000

near south side consolidated passenger and freight terminal, as well as distribution of the huge cost, are still controversial points among the fifteen railroads interested. H. G. Clark, assessor to James Gorman, president of the Rock Island railroad, told members of the city council railway terminals committee yesterday.

Two sets of plans contemplated a development adequate for the next twenty-five years have been prepared and the operating needs of each of the railroads involved agreed upon, according to Mr. Clark. One group, however, led by the New York Central and Rock Island lines, favors a site on the Dearborn street corner on Harrison street directly behind the present La Salle street station, while the others would place the headhouse of the new terminal at the site of the Dearborn street station.

Seek Early Action.

Negotiations are to be undertaken at once by a sub-group of the terminals committee to secure the cooperation of the railroads in straightening the river between Harrison and Mich streets and opening the grade crossing at Market, Wells and La Salle streets from the Loop to the south side. As now planned, the two improvements will be financed in part by special assessment on adjacent benefited property—most of which is owned by the railroads.

The building of a terminal requires extensive and exhaustive study," declared Mr. Clark, who appeared before the committee in the stead of Mr. Gorman, suddenly called from the city.

Mines Pro Rate Cost.

"In the old days all railroads using a terminal participated in its ownership. At the present time, the cost must be spread according to the number of trains operated into a number by a railroad. In the past, we found that terminals became inadequate or unbalanced within a short time after construction."

"It is with a view to erecting a terminal to accommodate the railroads for at least 75 years without becoming unbalanced that sub-committee of engineers to study all phases of the problem including streets, baggage, mail and express traffic as well as operation were appointed.

"When the final result is reached and all of the railroads have definitely agreed to enter the new terminal, it will be necessary to 'sell' the plans to the bankers who will have to supply the money. A good plan is relatively easy to sell the bankers but a poor plan will have hard sledding."

Seek Early Action.

Negotiations are to be undertaken at once by a sub-group of the terminals

U. S. CITIZENSHIP DENIED JAPANESE EVEN IF SOLDIER

Washington, D. C., May 25.—(Special)—Japanese are not entitled to become citizens of the United States, even though they have served in the armed forces of this country, according to a decision handed down today by Associate Justice Butler. Chief Justice Taft dissented from the opinion, but did not deliver any written difference.

The case concerned Hidemitsu Toyota, who was born in Japan and en-served the United States in 1918. Justice Butler's opinion stated that Toyota served substantially all that time, up to 1923, in the coast guard service, which was a part of the naval force nearly all the time. The United States was in the world war.

Toyota received eight or more honorable discharges, some of them for service during the war. On May 14, 1921, he filed a petition for naturalization in the federal court in Massachusetts. The petition was granted and the naturalization certificate awarded. The present case then arose on a petition to cancel the certificate on the ground that it was illegally prohibited by the law.

On the ground that Toyota had not been naturalized, he was denied his application for a passport.

Justice Taft dissented from the opinion, but did not deliver any written difference.

An astonishing fountain pen advance securing unequalled Durability, Strength, and Beauty

THE barrel of the self-filling pen is not an ink fount but merely a case to contain and protect the soft rubber ink sac. Isn't it logical that it should be made strong, durable and beautiful—like a watch case, for instance?

The cap and barrel of Wahl Pen are made of metal. Of gold or silver—for five thousand years of human experience have revealed no other materials so satisfactory for personal articles.

Metal gives lightness with strength to resist falls, blows, and all the wear and tear of daily use.

And the thin metal walls of the barrel allow space for a much larger ink sac. Size for size, Wahl Pen has practically twice the ink capacity of any other pen.

Wahl nibs are made with a jeweler's perfection of finish. They write with ivory-like smoothness and their iridium tips cannot be excelled in wearing quality.

Wahl Pen is the most serviceable fountain pen ever made. And it is beautiful, too, as a fine personal article should be.

Wahl Pen is made in designs to match Eversharp, and in sizes and with nibs to suit every hand. A dealer near you can show you an assortment of gold or silver models at $3 to $10.

We have with us tonight~

—two friends who need no introduction. Clicquot Club Ginger Ale, and Clicquot Club Pale Dry—both dispensers of joyous refreshment.

Suit your taste. Regular Clicquot Club tingles with zest and vigor. Pale Dry is mild and subtle, a great mixer with other drinks. And don't forget that it was Clicquot Club that first taught America what real ginger ale tastes like.

THE CLICQUOT CLUB COMPANY, MILLIS, MASSACHUSETTS, U. S. A.

Clicquot Club Regular and Clicquot Club Pale Dry both cost the same. Both are pint bottles, with two full glasses in every bottle. The distinctive-looking Clicquot bottle holds four ounces more than most other ginger ales that cost as much. Have your dealer—any dealer—send you a mixed case, half Regular and half Pale Dry. Return the bottles and get a rebate.

Here are three things you expect to get in every good drink—taste, wetness, and purity. Taste, to make the taking of needed water pleasant. Wetness, to quench the thirst that makes you want a drink. Purity, to make the drink you like best do you the most good. There's no purer water in the world than the sparkling clear water that goes into Clicquot Club.

No other ginger ale can quite match the Clicquot pace, for the reason that no one can mix ginger and sugar, fruit flavors and pure sparkling water with forty years of knowing how to make good drinks.

Clicquot Club will always be the big money's worth in ginger ale, with all its goodness sealed up in full-size pint bottles.

DRAINAGE BOARD AND GOVERNOR BATTLE TODAY

BY FRANK BUTZOW.
(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., May 25.—(Special)—Both sides are claiming victory tonight on the eve of tomorrow's impending battle in the house between Gov. Small and the Chicago sanitary district.

Each side is banking its hopes on the maneuvering of its strategists tonight. On one side is the drainage board, trying to muster 10 votes to pass its bond increase bill, with an emergency clause, tomorrow. But that will be the first skirmish only, for Gov. Small is expected to veto the measure, and the same two-thirds vote of 102 is needed later to override a veto in the house.

Tries to Hold Forces.

On the other side is the governor, extending his power to the utmost to prevent any further desertion from his administration army, his leaders having told him last week, when the sanitary district's bill was given 85 votes. It is a strange mixture of political elements that forms the little band lined up with the governor in this fight. It consists of a few extreme loyalists to the administration and a little group of anti-administration men, who hope to see this battle result in a permanent break between Gov. Small and the last bone of his legislative army.

Plans Compromise Bill.

Gov. Small will play his strongest card tomorrow. It is predicted tonight. It will be the introduction of a bill which he will insist is his last word in the way of a compromise. As a compromise, it is said to be entirely impossible.

The bill, like the one he proposed but did not introduce last week, will require the drainage board to submit its entire scope of operations to one of the governor's cabinet for approval before proceeding with any activity.

The governor's bill will permit the district to finance its operations at a lower rate of 3 to 4 per cent, but will require a referendum on all bond issues after Jan. 1, 1926. But in agreeing to the other drastic provisions of the governor's bill, the sanitary trustees would merely be signing their own water orders, they declare.

Little Hope for Bill.

It is unlikely that Gov. Small could pass his bill, even if the trustees' bill fails, in which event the fight would continue into a prolonged session.

If, in the end, no relief legislation is passed the governor intends to make an issue on the claim that he offered to meet the emergency but was rejected.

NEW EARTHQUAKE SPREADS TERROR AMONG JAPANESE

TOKIO, May 26.—(AP)—A heavy afterquake was reported at 1:21 this morning at Ōsaka, Kyoto, Fukuchiyama, and Kinsaki, the region so severely shaken Saturday morning. The clocks in Ōsaka and Kyoto were stopped and the populace badly frightened. Apparently there were no casualties and no damage.

Death Toll Nearly 300.

OSAKA, May 25.—(A. P.)—An official perfectural report today from three towns—Toyooka, Kinsaki and Minato village—shows that 278 persons were killed and 526 injured as a result of earthquake and fire Saturday. The same report shows 444 houses collapsed as a result of the earthquake and 2,324 houses were destroyed by fire.

German Women Seek Right to Be Morals Cases Jurors

GOETTINGEN, Germany, May 25.—Unanimous protest has been made by the German Women's League against the recent decision of the Berlin court excluding women jurors from service in cases of immoral offense. The resolution adopted by the league today points out that women are much more fit as jurors in such cases than men, because of the stronger moral conception of women.

"It makes my face feel so Good!"

This is your first delightful impression after using Boncilla Clasmic Beautifier. Just spread on this blue-gray magic balm—then relax and rest.

In twenty minutes—tired nerves are soothed, taut muscles relax, tense lines that if neglected soon become wrinkles are smoothed away. You feel like a new person.

As Refreshing As A Summer Shower

Your face beams with life and color, your complexion is clear and glowing, your features are alive with sparkling animation. You look younger—and YOUR FACE SHOWS IT.

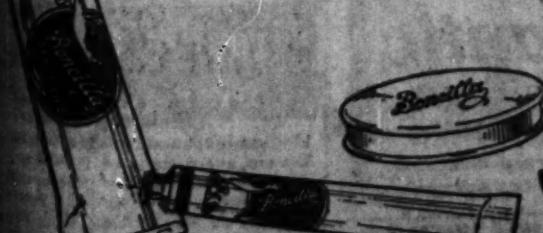

Besides the restful, zestful feeling of refreshed rejuvenation it imparts, Boncilla Beautifier makes the skin soft and smooth. It eliminates pimples, blackheads, sallowness, enlarged pores and excess oil. It lifts out lines and imparts an exquisite glow of natural color that brings out all your hidden charms.

Only One Thing More

Only one thing more than the Creams and Powders you now use, but it makes all the difference in the world. Use Boncilla Beautifier twice a week. For the daily toilet, add Boncilla Cold and Vanishing Creams and Boncilla creamed Face Powder.

In the Section of Moderately Priced Frocks A Sale of Ripple Crepe Frocks Much Underpriced at $25

This is a sale that is devoted exclusively to the presentation of many charming versions of the "utility" frock for summer. The moderate pricing is emphasized as most unusual for frocks so attractive.

Two-Piece Frocks, Frocks with Graceful Rippling Jabots or Long Ties of Crepe de Chine Frocks with Buttons and Pipings in Contrasting Color

There is great variety in such details as the cut and shape of the collars, so that becoming choice is assured. The colors, too, are very inclusive—navy and powder blue, cocoa, black, beige, red, Lanvin green, gray and white in the assortment.

Fourth Floor, East.

In the Gray Shop Frocks of Tub Silk In a Heavy Broadcloth Weave $17.50

Among the most interesting of the groups in this section of specialized apparel are those frocks designed for general utility.

In the Extra And Larger Sizes

The soft roll collar with its black ribbon tie, the slot pockets with their rows of tiny pearl buttons are the effective fashion details.

The very heavy, supple texture of the silk broadcloth is unusual in frocks so moderately priced. In narrow stripes of varied colors on white and in plain gray, orchid, rose or Copenhagen blue. Sketched. $17.50.

Ninth Floor, North.

In the Sports Section Two-Piece Frocks of Silk With the "Robin Hood" Over-Blouse At $45

Like a huntman's jerkin is the quaint over-blouse that gives this smart frock its distinction and charm. A white collar gives a softening touch.

Small Scallops Finish the Blouse All Around

The skirt, attached to a bodice top, has insets of pleating which give the freedom of motion necessary for more active sports.

The crepe de Chine is very heavy and lustrous—lovely in the peach, gray, powder blue, Lanvin green or navy blue in which this frock may be chosen. Sketched. $45.

Fifth Floor, North.

Gentlemen:-

We wish to express our appreciation and to congratulate your newspapers on the success attained through our recent advertising campaign conducted exclusively in the Sunday Herald and Herald-Traveler.

Over five thousand of New England's most progressive grocers are now carrying Monarch Food Products. The Herald-Traveler merchandising co-operation and advertising helped greatly in securing hundreds of new distributors.

Everywhere we went in New England we found in the independent retail grocer keenly interested in the fine work you have been doing in your Better Homes Bureau Test Kitchen, and this medium was of great assistance to us in demonstrating to the New England Housewife the superiority of Monarch Food Products.

Very truly yours,

REID. MURDOCH & CO.

More than 1000 new dealer accounts,—immediate consumer action in a market of three and one-half million population, and a new high mark in volume,—that is what Reid Murdoch & Co. experience in entering the Boston market through the Herald-Traveler exclusively.

Within thirty days Reid Murdoch & Company's problem in New England changed from one of selling to one of getting the goods and getting them out.

Within thirty days, starting from "scratch," Reid Murdoch & Co. simply swept their "Monarch" Food Products over New England, right into a secure place in the New England favor—and made an immediate profit!

—all through proper use of the one Boston paper that reaches the most important section of that rich and profitable zone.

How this extraordinary success was accomplished—what part the Herald-Traveler Service Bureau played in the merchandising—How the Herald-Traveler Better Homes Bureau functioned in introducing the product to housewives, are pertinent information for any advertiser planning to enter or to strengthen his position in New England.

Your problem in the Boston market may permit of equally successful solution. We would appreciate an opportunity to go over it with you.

ONWENTZIA SEE'S ROYAL GOLF IN PRACTICE PLAY

BY MORROW KRUM.
One hundred of the best golf players of the Midwest pushed their way across the windswept Onwentsia course yesterday in practice for the national open tournament qualifying rounds which start tomorrow. Yesterday was the first official practice day, today will be the second and last. The big show starts at 9 o'clock tomorrow.

Always the aspirants for the National title are secretive regarding their practice scores and those who were yesterday can true to form. There were no public posting of scores, scattering around the clubhouse as spectators stepped off the 18th green. And when the day was done and the playing was finished, it became known that some good golf had been exhibited.

Bobby Great Going Out.

Take the "out" nine, that Bobby Cruickshank, who now puts Oklahoma before his name, played before a small gallery for instance. The little fellow who was runner-up to Bobby Jones in 1923 clicked off a neat 33 and there in the gallery were expectant of a new record. But the cold wind may have gotten into Bobby's bones on the way in, for he was something close to 40 to get home.

The first nine was something to talk about. He started off with a bob MacDonald, E. Robinson, and Ernest Johnson, a star student of MacDonald. The two Bobes went down the first fairway and to the cup in one stroke. On the second hole, an acre of 215 yards, MacDonald put his iron shot within three feet of the cup and sank his putt for a birdie 2. Cruickshank got a 3. Then on the third hole started in to make up. His second shot put his ball into a trap at the fifth green and his explosion shot dropped him 4 feet from the cup.

Bob Gets Birdie Four.

Bob stepped onto the green, took a casual look at the ball, the cup and the green between the two and tapped the ball. It dropped into the cup for a birdie 4. MacDonald got a par-5, though he was closer to the cup than to Cruickshank.

Then, Cruickshank went through the fourth, fifth, sixth, seventh, eighth, and ninth in championship style, although he missed a putt on the eighth. MacDonald was done behind him with a 46. All three were close to 40.

There was a thrill for those who had seen the eighteenth green and wanted the players shoot off tee. Jim Wethered of Edgewater stepped to the course of the ball with growing excitement. It sailed straight for the green, bounded once or twice, and dropped into the cup—the first hole in the present show.

Among others who went around yesterday were:

Seven Gardner, Larry Nabholz, Ward Gandy, Bob White of Olympia Fields, Ward Sawyer, Frank Johnson, A. Cunningham, A. L. Clegg, Derville, James J. Lawson, James Mohan, Wilfred Reid of Detroit, W. C. Campbell, Arthur Ham, W. H. Sherman, George C. Campbell, George Kinney of Chicago, Tom Kenney, George Deven, John Hutchinson, and Harry Hampton.

WOLVERINE NET TEAM TROUNCE PURPLE, 5 TO 2

Although the Wolverines have to play Wisconsin, they virtually clinched the Big Ten championship by defeating Northwestern, 5 to 2, yesterday at Evanston. The leaders copied four singles and a doubles, being beaten by the Purple in a doubles and a singles. Merrill, paired with Brody, beat the Purple's Jerome Ad Crane, 6-4, 6-4, 6-4. The N. U. pair has yet to be beaten in the doubles by a conference team.

In the singles Jerome [M.] beat Merrill [N.], 7-5, 6-4; Crane [M.] over Brown [N.], 4-6, 6-1, 6-1; Kishbaum [M.] defeated Smith [N.], 6-4; Collins [M.] triumphed over Foss [M.], 6-4, 6-1, and Elliott [M.] beat Boyer [N.], 6-1, 6-0.

The initial doubles match was won by Kishbaum and Poole of Michigan, and Collins of Northwestern, 6-4, 6-2, 6-0.

Interscholastic Net Meet Begins at U. of C. Today
The initial round of the University of Chicago's second annual Cook county interscholastic tennis tournament will be held at the Midway Tennis courts this afternoon. The meet, won last year by George Lott Jr., has attracted a number of city and suburban high school stars. The meet is in charge of Capt. Kimball Valentine and Austin McCarty, members of the tennis squad.

of the Americans who crossed the Atlantic to play in this championship, only two were called on to show their wares today. One of them, J. F. Dahlberg of the Oak Hill club, Rochester, N. Y., got through with a victory over C. D. Maddon of the Temple Golf club by 2 up and 1 to play.

Onwentsia Player Beaten

The other, L. V. Cochran of the Onwentsia club of Chicago, was conquered on the eighteenth green by last year's British boy champion, a 19 year old Scotman, Archibald Matheson of Edinburgh.

The other two Americans entered, R. A. Stranahan of the Inverness club, Toledo, O., and A. F. Bourne, Garden City club, New York, both drew first round byes and will not play until tomorrow.

Except for the defeats of Wethered and Holderness, there were no upsets in today's play.

CHESS GAME, CHICAGO VS. ANTWERP, TO TAKE FOUR YEARS TO PLAY

C HICAGO will introduce a brand new feature into international amateur chess competition starting late this week for the first time in the history of the royal game—a team representing local talent will play by mail with a team located nearly 4,000 miles away on the other side of the Atlantic. The match, which will be played entirely by mail and which experts figure will take nearly four years of constant correspondence to finish will be waged by the players of the local Hawthorne works of the Western Electric company and their associates of the Bell Telephone Manufacturing company at Antwerp, the Belgian allied company of the International Western Electric company.

The first moves of the match will be made by the Hawthorne men and forwarded to Antwerp by J. Shallcross, who has been elected captain of the local team.

ONWENTZIA PLAYER IS BEATEN IN ENGLAND

WESTWARD HO, England, May 25. (AP)—The first day's play of the British amateur golf championship brought about the downfall of two of the "Big Three" stars favored above all others to capture the title and the trophy.

The reigning champion, Sir Ernest Holderness, was beaten on the eighteenth green by the Argentine champion, Elbert A. Cruckshank, a native of Scotland, 21, for five years.

Sit-in on those famous Camp-fire
Business Talks!

"Mr. Edison's mind is very different from that of Mr. Ford's"—See page 730, SYSTEM for June.

12 Shipments of Harvey S. Firestone's dynamic, business-building methods, plans and policies delivered F. O. B. your desk for a few cents each!

DO you enjoy clipping coupons? . . . The 6% and 7% kind that come attached to your gilt-edged bonds?

Then glance at the coupon in the lower right-hand corner of this advertisement. You can't negotiate it at your bank. But you can cash it to the tune of many thousand percent in your business.

For this humble coupon with a dollar bill added to it, will bring you the opening installments of the most remarkable business story ever published.

More than that! It will bring you, not a mere story alone,

The Management Principles of Firestone, Edison and Ford

Alongside the immortal "Tinker-to Evers—to Chance" comes a new and equally classic play—the triple-play of three master business minds on the problems of business

"Edison—to Ford—to Firestone."

And the net result of this famous interchange of business ideas is saturated through the Firestone Memoirs—starting in the June issue of SYSTEM.

For when those three "boys during an outing"—Henry, Tom and Harvey—sit around the camp-fire, they swap something besides vacation stories. They swap business experience, too. For all three have learned that the cheapest way to acquire business experience is to borrow it from some fellow who has already paid for it!

So what Firestone, Edison and Ford have done for each other, the Firestone Memoirs will do for you. First, they will bring you the business experience Firestone has paid for, through years of achievement; and, second, the experience he has borrowed from his famous associations.

The Firestone Memoirs form a complete story both of great businesses and of great business men. They detail the financial, marketing and management plans of the Firestone Tire and Rubber Company through each state of its development, as well as the methods and policies of the master-builder back of it all!

There Are Only Two Possible Ways to Increase Any Business

These are only two ways to improve any business. One is to get better methods into it. The other is to get men who will supply the better methods.

The second way is often very expensive. You could hardly afford to retain Harvey S. Firestone's services for your own business; he would not put a price on them. But through these Memoirs, you get the best of his working methods.

And that is a mighty good example of the purpose of SYSTEM, the Magazine of Business: To bring you each month, in analyzed and charted form, the methods of scores of the ablest business men in America, without adding their salaries to your payroll!

The SYSTEM reader has in effect on his personal staff the greatest coterie of sales, advertising, management and administrative geniuses in American business. Yet his total overhead for their combined services is 33½ cents a month!

Larry Vail, handsome young lumberman, lodges on Franklin's estate and Sid Evans, Larry's friend, the cabin and furniture. Mrs. Franklin, her maid Jane, is a member of the camp. Mrs. Franklin is not feeling well and Larry offers to take care of her. She tells him her photographic equipment is missing and asks him to return it to Larry in the morning. She tells Larry to keep it. On their return, Larry gains her uncle's confidence. Larry offers to return the missing equipment to Mrs. Franklin and Franklin returns the office manager and Marchant to her work. The old house is sold to the Evanses from old H. and M. in Toledo. While Sid is a member of a small group of men who

"Look here, you're planning to spoil your little game."

"But Jefferson! You won't?"

"Why not? I'm a pirate."

"But Jeff,"

"A pirate! Women, money, all the 'em better when I've got 'em. You mean you have plan?"

"Didn't you give me the word, I'll queer yours?"

"But how can you steal it?"

"What about it? You going to have to?"

"I have to. You know too much."

Her voice trembled. She did not know what she did not know.

"I thought so," he chuckled.

"Too bad we didn't make more noise."

You reached right into my pocket."

He leaned forward and spoke in a manner:

"A good pair! You're one of us, I know. I don't know if puppy and kitten any longer round the floor. We've got to see."

"After that—you've got to see."

"I wish you wouldn't call me."

"You ought to be glad I do."

"I'm too big for a man, though."

"You beat about five years, at least."

"But I'm."

"Hush! I've checked up."

You reached across and patted her shoulder.

"You're wrong, Jefferson,"

she passed the kitten stage,

"I don't want to!" he exclamation.

"I want to give you what I can."

"You never you might fall!"

"Puff! Do you know why the Franklin took such a long time at Toronto, get the grant and took over with Bagnall's millions?"

"Then you are only going?"

"Reida asked quickly.

"Practically that, though I ever suspect me. O, it's a smile being very generous with him."

"And without the timber he'd be scrap—to me."

"But are you sure it will be?"

"The whole thing fixed at night by the British just as I have to fix and make things I have to fix and make."

"What is that?" Reida asked.

"Her mind was already busy when he had become hers. The case in victory for another. Then Vail had been turned again."

Coupling on the heels of the coming. In the beginning she had unshared Sid, then Shand, then expected, seemed to have been unshared with the three of them.

She had quickly divined the cold cleverness of what went on with the three of them.

WHITE WATER

By ROBERT E. PINKERTON

Rep. U. S. Pat. Off.

SYNOPSIS.

John Vail, handsome young woodsman, is commissioned by Howard Franklin to build a house in Franklin's forest preserve. With the help of two friends, Hughes and Sid Evans, Larry works all through the winter. In the spring Franklin comes to inspect the cabin and finds them satisfactory. He goes to California on business, but Franklin, his maid Jane, and Mr. Frank's nieces, Marcia and Reilda, come to spend summer at the cabin. Mrs. Frank is interested in taking pictures of the deer, and Reilda is asked to act as her guide on her photographic excursions. On one of these excursions Reilda is not feeling well, and Larry and Marcia go fishing. When they return, Reilda is unable to control her anger against Marcia for taking Larry. Two days later Reilda goes on a photographic excursion with Larry as her guide. On their way back to the cabin, they stop to have a meal at a small restaurant. Reilda is angry because she has to pay for the meal, and Larry tells her that he will pay for it. She puts his arms about her to soothe her and she says, "I'm sorry I didn't tell you about the money." Larry tells her that he loves him and begs him to go away with her. Reilda agrees. On their return they find that Howard Franklin has unexpectedly returned. He offers her uncle's consent to return with him to the states and prepare herself for the future. Franklin comes to Larry that night and is about to leave. Reilda offers him a job at the mill, and he accepts it. Reilda and Franklin return to California. Larry sends to headquarters for a new manager and Marcia appears in answer to his request. Against his will he goes to work at the mill. Sid Evans comes to the mill to work for Larry. He is a small group of men who own the hunting property jointly with Howard Franklin.

REILDA PLOTS WITH SHAND.

Reilda leaned forward and spoke in a whisper to Reilda.

"Look here, you're planning a raid—settlement and alimony and all that, and god your little game."

"Not Jefferson! You wouldn't!"

"Why not? I'm a pirate. Always have been. I have all the instincts

"But Jefferson! You wouldn't!"

Women, money, sawmills—they're all the same to me, in a way. It's better when I've stolen 'em."

"You mean you have planned to steal the mill?"

"Isn't you give me the idea? And if you do anything to queen my old queer years."

"But how can you steal it?" Reilda demanded.

"What about it? You going to play square?"

"I have to. You know too much already."

Her voice trembled. She displayed every evidence of fear.

"I thought so," he chuckled. "You and I ought to make a good pair. Too bad we didn't meet before. When I came up here last month I don't have an idea of anything beyond a look of back to nature stuff, and I've plunked right into you and—and fortune."

He leaned forward and spoke confidentially, without the freebooter's accent of the woods.

"A good pair! You're one of the few women I ever saw that had the guts and brains. I don't know yet which you have the most of. And we're a happy and kitten any longer—just chasing the soft yarn ball of love around the world. We've got to have more. That first kick, it comes up. And you and I—we can do that. Can't we, old girl?"

"I wish you wouldn't call me 'old girl!'"

"You ought to be glad I do. It shows I'm absolutely honest with you. I'm the best for a man, the time he really begins to live. And you—I've got less than five years, and you're right where I am, at the best age for women."

"But I—"

"Hush! I've checked up. And I'll say this—my first guess was thirty."

He reached across and patted his hand.

"You're wrong, Jefferson," she said in a soft voice. "I don't believe I've passed the kitten stage, as you call it, with you. I think you could do no more than anything."

"I don't want to!" he exclaimed with a laugh that failed to hide his shame. "I want to give you both. And when I've put through this deal I can."

"You mean you might fail?"

"Hush! I've checked up. And I'll say this—my first guess was thirty."

He reached across and patted his hand.

Case of the Man Who Is Divided Between Mother and Fiancee

BY DORIS BLAKE.

Who should be kept waiting, the mother or the fiancee? If a mother's son has asked a girl to marry him, who should be given first consideration, the girl or mother?

Not an easy question to answer, is it? Somebody is going to be unhappy—but need she be? Is this not a good time for mother to get in some training on the role of the unselfish, kindly mother-in-law?

A correspondent wrote me that her fiance kept her waiting, almost every time she had an engagement with him, while he went on an errand for his mother, or to take her somewhere. As the girl planned to make an issue of it with her George, I suggested that consideration for his mother was an admirable trait in a man, and told her to try to look at it in that way. I still believe you can fairly well judge a man by his attitude toward his family, and their toward him. Nevertheless, I agree with Nineteen who offers mild protest against my advice to George's fiancee that some mothers, envious of their sons' sweethearts, show undue selfishness at this particular time in the lives of the young couple. They succeed in making the way extremely difficult by making themselves an issue.

It is not asking too much of a mother of a boy in love, and engaged to a nice girl, to let him go to see the girl waiting for her sweetheart. Every minute, then, of awaiting her beloved was an anxious one, a slow dragging one, maybe a painful one, if his mother was the cause of the delay. Young love is like that, and it does not change with generations. Selfish? Maybe, but young love is, and it has more of a right to be, than the generation now grown older and more amenable to reason.

The older woman has learned through the advantages of her years that consideration of others is the main ingredient of a happy life. It is, however, still, it is because she has never learned that truth. And two young people in love should have consideration. This is their big hour. Life will teach them many lessons before they're through. So, let them have each other without raising barriers that, with a bit of good management, could just as well be dispensed with.

If mother has an errand for her boy to do, or she wants him to take her somewhere before he leaves to keep his appointment with his fiancee, why could she not arrange to start earlier and give him the chance to be on time, and to make arrangements for some one else to do them? When the boy leaves the home for good, such arrangements will have to be made. There is just no sense—and little justice—in making a stumbling block of yourself before the happiness of a couple of young people.

If mothers of known children had moving picture records of their own young sons, they could "dash" on a screen, every now and then, and others wouldn't then be so word of sympathy in their hearts for the generation they are trying to control?

You know there would be. And if there were a talking machine record of those same days, it would remind them of their promise: "Believe me, when I have grown children, I'll let them have some fun."

All Right to Call.

Dear Miss Blake: I am a girl of 20 and love a fellow whom I met at a dance two years ago. He was nice to me. I was leaving for home that week and he said he was sorry I could not stay longer, because there would be a big dance the next week. I did not care much for fellows then and did not tell him to write to me. His cousin is a dear friend of mine and said he was nice for me. I am going down to the country within a few weeks and would like to know if I should call him up.

be justified in phoning him, telling him you are visiting there for a few days and would be glad to see him. Or, perhaps if you were to tell us something you would like to see him, we would arrange a meeting. If you have any hesitancy about calling, the latter would be the easiest way for you, dear.

Want to Be Friendly.
Dear Miss Blake: I am 17 and am in love with a fellow of 22. I worked in the same office as he did for ten months, and he grew to love me. I am not working with this boy anymore, but while employed with him he always showed particular attention to me, and he also asked me out once, but regret that I refused. When we were alone he always expressed his love for me, but I never told him that I loved him. I cannot go on without seeing him, as I have grown to love him more than I ever did. I do not know if I can get in touch with this fellow, as I never gave him my address, and I also did not tell him that I was leaving.

Blue Eyes.
We are sure you will find this man appreciative of any books you can donate. If you have the books and they are no longer in use, why not let us know?

Needs Sewing Machine.
I am in need of a sewing machine and cannot afford to buy one, as my husband's work is not regular. We have had sickness in the family, and my little girl has just recovered from scarlet fever. The doctor is still to be paid, and there are other bills to meet. If I had a machine I feel sure

I could do sewing at home and help out.

J. F.

Can some one donate a sewing machine. Perhaps you are planning on a new electric one, and can pass the old one on to this mother?

Fancy bands are inexpensive enough and easily enough adjusted to allow for the smart dresser to have more than one. If a man doesn't try to wear the same band on his hat all the time he can have a band of blue and red, and not have to wear it with his green and purple tie, but can have a hat band that is more in keeping with such a tie.

Fancy bands are not good with a gray suit. The fancy band adds another opportunity to make attractive color schemes, but it also adds another pitfall for the unskillful combination of colors. If a man isn't sure of his step, he'd better not be too rash in the hat bands he selects, but err on the side of conservatism.

Benton was afraid that Billy would disgrace her with poor manners at the children's party.

Billy's mother had told him some things to not forget, but when Betty was on the way and almost at the scene of the affair she said: "Now, Billy, use your handkerchief every other minute and say 'thank you' to the other."

Dealers' Names in Seven States

THE Kansas City Star has just published eleven dealer books, each representing a certain line of retail merchandise. The grocers' names are in one book, the hardware dealers' names in another and so on.

Here is the list:

No. of Names
26,401	Grocery Stores.
20,616	General Stores.
7,272	Drug Stores.
12,787	Automobile and Garages.
8,893	Hardware Stores.
4,739	Furniture Stores.
7,594	Confectionery and Cigar Stores.
5,237	Men's Clothing Stores.
5,758	Dry Goods and Women's Clothing Stores.
2,416	Electrical Stores.
1,044	Music Stores.

The morning, evening, Sunday and Weekly editions of The Star circulate over seven states--Missouri, Kansas, Iowa, Nebraska, Oklahoma, Arkansas and Colorado. Each book contains the dealers' names by towns in these seven states.

Used in conjunction with The Star's circulation book, the dealer books yield valuable information to sales executives.

For example, a manufacturer of a breakfast food may be interested in Lawrence, Kas. In a minute he will be able to visualize the Lawrence market...

Population	12,456
Daily Star Circulation	2,105
Sunday Star Circulation	2,547
Weekly Star Circulation	422
Grocery Stores	63

In addition to this information, he will have the names of the 63 grocery stores in Lawrence, Kas.

And so with other cities in the seven states.

The research department has evolved a plan whereby The Star's dealer lists and its circulation and merchandising data book may be used with amazing effect in establishing, extending or intensifying consumer demand and dealer distribution. It is based on thoroughly sound merchandising principles and is available to advertisers in The Kansas City Star.

The Chicago office of The Star will be glad to advise with you and explain The Star's unequalled merchandising service.

I WAS A STOCK SALESMAN During the past ten years I have successfully sold stock, educational equipment and various supplies in a local business today.

It has proven to me that this field of activity is fundamentally sound and substantial without parallel in any other business. It is a business big enough for any man.

Men who have sold kindred line, under automobiles, insurance, etc., etc., have found success in this field and to such men I extend an invitation for an interview. The facts will convince you the policy of this business is sound.
